While retirement typically occurs, after completing a career and saving and investing for it, a new trend is emerging among Gen Z career professionals called “micro-retirement.” Micro-retirements involve taking a one to two-week break from work every 12 to 18 months.

Gen Z is using micro-retirement to avoid burnout, find greater fulfillment in their work, and enhance their overall well-being. However, it’s not just Gen-Z:

The long hours, the high pressure, I was burnt out.

A black and white photograph of a woman from the waist up. She is wearing a dark green, sleeveless dress with a subtle texture or pattern. A cluster of small, white butterflies is scattered across the center of the image, some resting on her shoulder and others in flight. Her hair is dark and styled in loose waves. She is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression.

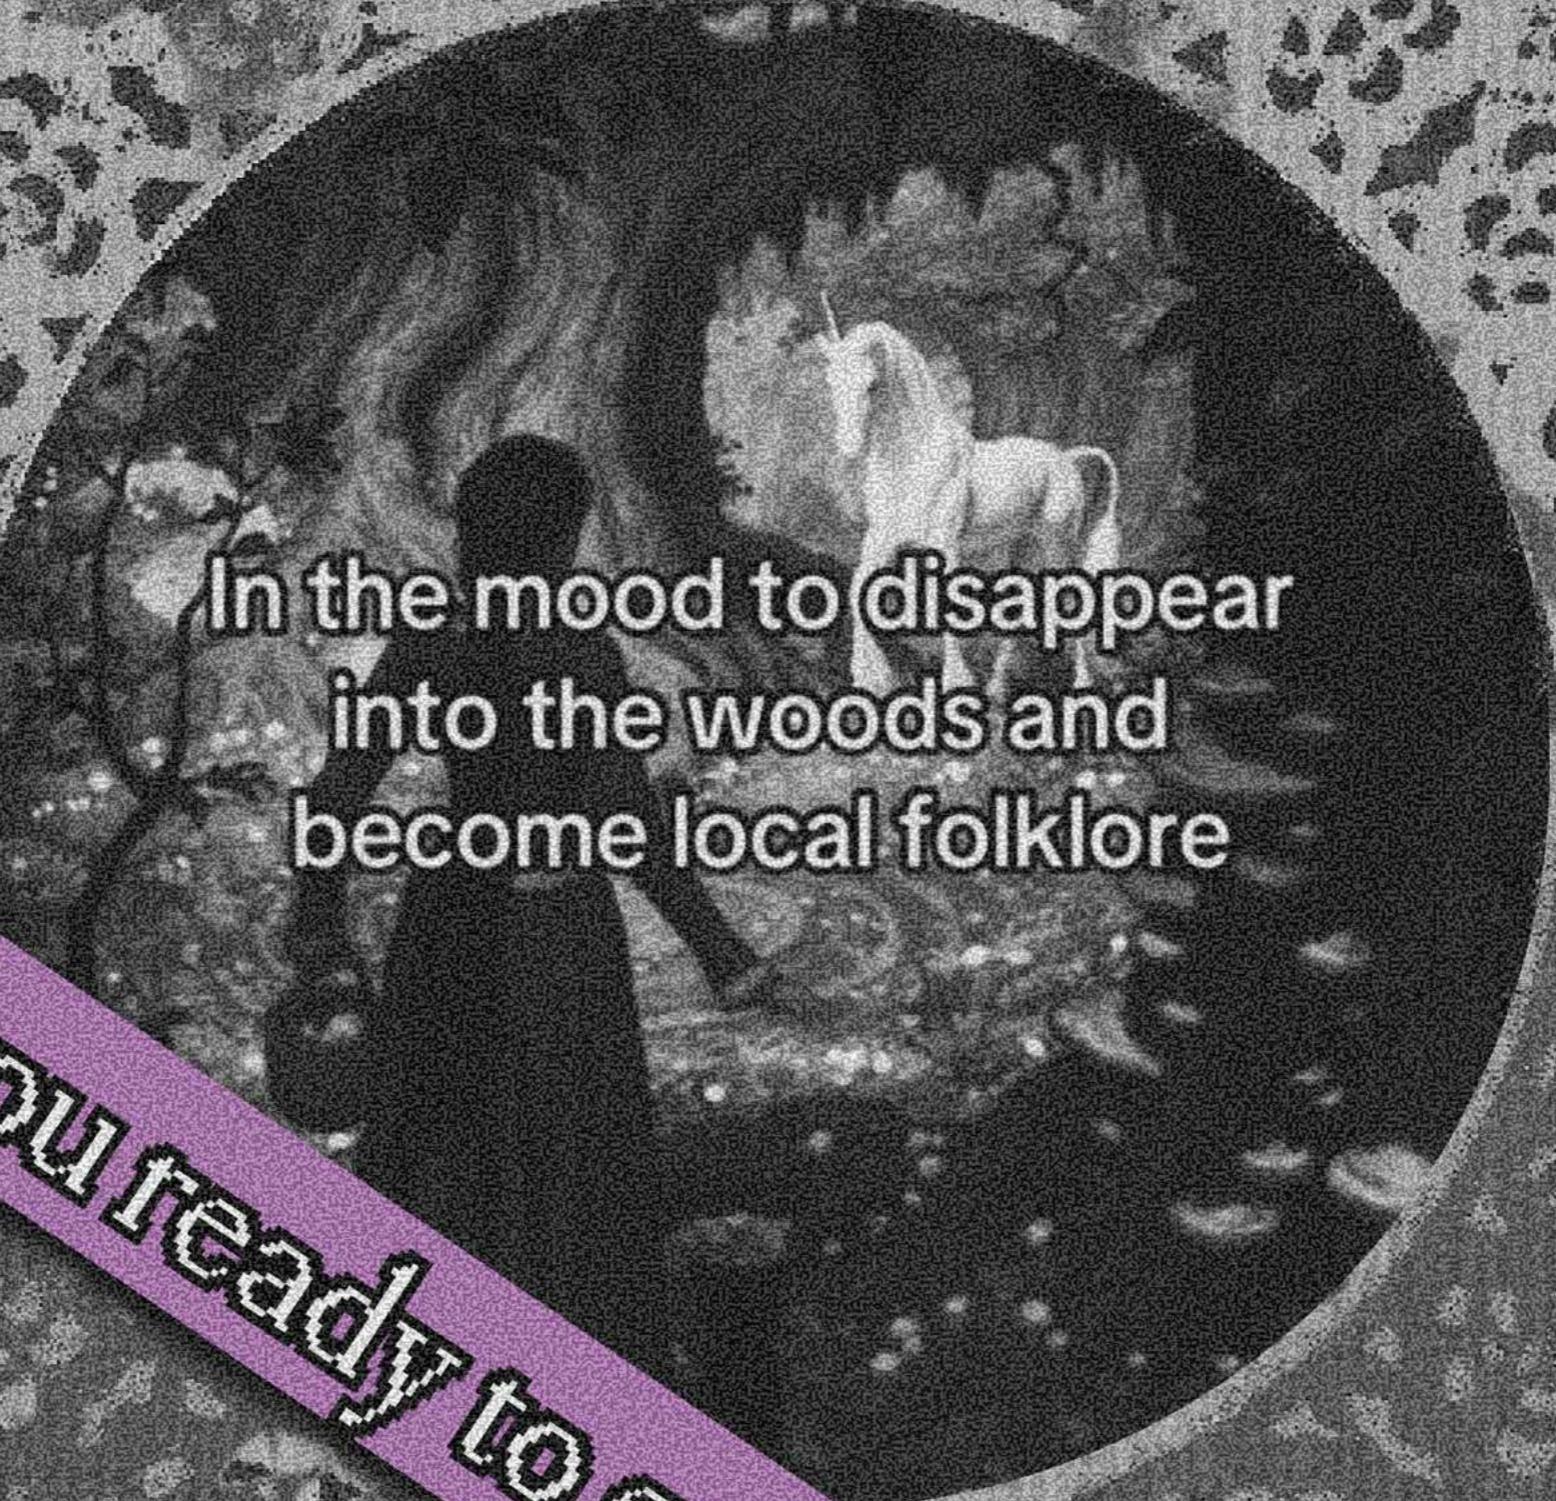

Sorry to break it to you but...
being online is embarrassing now.
